LINK: *

<https://answergarden.ch/>

DESCRIPTION: short description of the tool, 2-3 lines *

AnswerGarden is a shared word cloud. It makes it easy to gather short, few-word thoughts from students. At the beginning of the course you can ask for preconceived ideas, things that need clarification during the course, quick feedback during the lectures, etc. Both the teacher and students learn here: the teacher gets new information about students' skills and ideas for development. AnswerGarden is ideal for an inclusive lecture.

TYPE: (specify mobile app, web app, desktop app). [if available System: (for desktop app: iOS (iPhone, iPod touch, iPad), Android, WinPhone; for desktop app: Win, Linux, MacOS)] *

AnswerGarden works on different devices without downloading or logging in to applications, and is one of the few word clouds that a group can edit together

DESCRIPTION: short description of the tool, 2-3 lines *

Bamboozle is a huge database of 750,000 freely accessible games, created by teachers. Though not all games have high educational value. Many are just great to break the ice, take a break from learning, or reward your students with a little fun. The website is made up of game cards. Clicking a card opens up the game, which again consists of question cards that you can click to reveal the answer. There's also a simple search box to help you find what you need. The Bamboozle platform is simple to use. No preparation, downloads, or sign-up is needed.

DESCRIPTION: short description of the tool, 2-3 lines *

Google Jamboard is a feature-rich free online whiteboard that makes sense to use for Google account holders (which is pretty much everyone). Jamboards come with a variety of tools like pens, selection tools, sticky notes, image import, text boxes, and a laser pen for presentation. You can open several whiteboards and switch back and forth between them. The Jamboards are stored in your Google account and integrate with other Google apps, like Google Calendar. If you want an alternative to Google Jamboard we heard good things about Canvas Dotstorming.

DESCRIPTION: short description of the tool, 2-3 lines *

CourseLab: highly engaging online courses can be built and published through the web or an LMS. Using its e-training module creation tool, the users can simply drag and drop their training content to create slide-based courses. Lessons can be made more interactive by adding images, videos, animations, and quizzes. These are perfect for motivating learners into taking and completing the course. This elearning tool has no ready-made courses for learning and development professionals and unlike other elearning platforms, the tool isn't as interactive. But it does make up for it with features like elearning templates and built-in test creation capability, allowing users to customize quizzes and learning exercises of any type and format.
